

An English teacher with six years of experience in secondary education, curriculum design, and student-centered learning strategies. A proven track record of leveraging education technology and creative lesson planning to inspire critical analysis and a love for literature. Adept at tailoring instruction to diverse learning needs to maximize student growth.

Professional Experience

September 2019 - Current

English Teacher Lincoln High School, Brooklyn, NY

- Teach English courses to 20 to 25 first-year students and juniors, focusing on literary analysis, essay writing, and critical reading skills.
- Designed an interdisciplinary curriculum integrating contemporary novels with historical texts, improving average test scores by 17% over two years
- Integrated education technology, including LMS and multimedia tools, to diversify teaching methods

September 2017 - June 2019

English Teacher Queensborough High School, Queens, NY

- Developed and taught four honors English classes with over 20 sophomores and seniors, including advanced courses on American literature and modern poetry
- Created interactive lessons using group discussions to deepen understanding of complex themes in "Frankenstein," "As I Lay Dying," and "Hills Like White Elephants."
- Led parent-teacher conferences to provide tailored feedback and collaborate on student improvement strategies

Key Skills

Curriculum development
Creative lesson planning
Literary analysis
Education technology
Differentiated instruction

Education

2017

Bachelor of Arts (B.A.) English Education New York University, New York, NY

Certifications

- State of New York Single Subject Teaching Credential, English | 2017